

Subaltern Speaks Season 2 Trailer Transcript

Welcome to Season 2 of “Subaltern Speaks”, the official podcast of the University of Toronto’s Multi-Faith Centre. I’m Yasamin, and I’m Christina. We are students at U of T and we are so excited to be your hosts for this new season. “Subaltern Speaks” is for spiritual study and practice where we explore the legacies of colonialism across religions and spiritualities of colonized peoples, otherwise known as the “Subaltern” in Post-Colonial Studies.

Together, with leading thinkers, academics, activists, artists and spiritual leaders in our communities and beyond, we seek to dismantle how colonialism and decolonization are understood, and how it continues to be practiced today. We’ll cover themes such as resistance, the evolution of culture, spirituality, migration, and decolonization.

Head to Spotify, Apple podcasts, or wherever you listen to podcasts to tune into our latest episodes.

We will be joined by some amazing guests this season to discuss exciting topics such as Hinduism and the colonial construction of religion in the British Raj, Western appropriation of Buddhism, Caribbean and South American Indigenous spiritualities, as well as Deconstructing the discourse of World Religions, and much more.

We hope you’ll tune in!
